ESI International Expands Canadian Operations

ESI International announced on 26 October 2009 that it will now deliver its world-class learning programs and services direct to the Canadian market. While Canadian businesses have benefited from ESI's curricula for more than a dozen years, they will now have easier access to ESI's global infrastructure and an expanded range of learning services.

"For years we have worked through our partner in Canada," said John Eley, ESI President & CEO (pictured right). "Several factors, including the current state of the global economy, make this the right time to expand our client offerings in this key market."

Canadian businesses will now have easy access to ESI's deep bench of subject matter experts, improved coordination for international programs and a greatly expanded range of services including assessments, coaching, methodology development as well as ESI's global online learning options.

According to the ESI press release, the company has worked with its partner in Canada, Nexient Learning, for more than 10 years and will continue to deliver their existing high-quality programs under the ESI brand with uninterrupted service in Canada. ESI has already published its open enrollment schedule in Toronto, Ottawa, Vancouver, Victoria, Kitchener and Calgary and will work with clients to deliver services in the areas of program management, project management, business analysis, business skills and contract management.
